MONTHLY NEWSLETTER

Optimism

As we near the milestone of a year of remote learning, it is important to remember the words of Kahlil Gibran who once said, “No matter how long the storm lasts the sun always shines behind the clouds.” The only way we can get through the past is to look forward, and that is exactly the message that parents should share with students.

Talk about the positives that came out of this time of learning remotely, or practicing a new skill, or more time with family, and realizing we don’t need to constantly be GO GO GOING are all important pandemic lessons. We have had the gift of time these last several months and we can use what we learned to be even better moving forward.

Encourage your students to share things they learned during this time. Have a discussion about the new habits they established, or skills learned and express your own optimism for the future.
